

Eagle-eyed optician diagnoses potentially fatal brain condition

FOCUS: Vipul Jyoti of Rose Opticians in the Harvey Centre, Harlow, who discovered a potentially fatal condition in a patient

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AN optician was expecting to give a customer a simple eye test but made a discovery that saved her life.

Vipul Jyoti, 24, spotted signs of swelling behind the eye of the woman who had expected nothing more than a routine check-up on Saturday at Rose Opticians in the Harvey Centre, Harlow.

His quick thinking was essential and the Harlow woman, who is aged in her 30s and did not wish to be named, was rushed to Princess Alexandra Hospital, Hamstel Road, Harlow.

Mr Jyoti, who lives in Red-bridge, London, said: "It was a patient who came in with a headache and it turned out there was something quite serious going on in her brain.

"I found something called intracranial hypertension and it has to be treated as soon as possible.

"It can lead to death."

Swelling

Intracranial hypertension (IH) is a rare but potentially fatal condition which develops rapidly and causes brain swelling or intracranial bleeding.

The woman had a variety called idiopathic IH, which has no known cause.

She urgently needed a small puncture in the spine to relieve pressure on the brain.

If left untreated it leads to a swelling of the nerves in the eyes, which is what Mr Jyoti observed.

If he had not made the discovery the swelling could have caused blindness and even threatened her life.

Opticians are wary of IH after eight-year-old Ipswich boy, Vincent Barker, died in July 2012 five months after optician Honey Rose failed to notice or respond to hydrocephalus, a similar eye condition.

Tears in the dock as man is cleared of manslaughter of colleague

A FORMER Cheshunt man wept as he was cleared of the manslaughter of a work colleague in Harlow.

A jury took just 30 minutes to find IT worker Bradley Casey, 21, now of Castle Street in Thetford, Norfolk, not guilty at the end of a four-day trial at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday.

The man who died was 53-year-old William Wareham, a work colleague of Mr Casey's.

The fatal incident happened at a BUPA Healthcare Christmas party at the Park Inn Hotel, Harlow.

Drinking

The court had been told that Mr Casey, formerly of Palmers Way, Cheshunt, Mr Wareham and another colleague had gone out to get a taxi to go drinking elsewhere.

But while they were waiting, Mr Casey struck Mr Wareham, which resulted in him falling backwards and cracking his head on the pavement.

He died in hospital less than 36 hours later.

Mr Casey had told the court he threw the punch after Mr Wareham had attacked him with a cigarette, and said he had acted in "self defence."

The judge in his summing up had told the jury that if they accepted that Mr Wareham had been the "aggressor" they then had to decide whether Mr Casey had used "reasonable force" to defend himself.

Trembling

As the jury returned to the packed court to give their verdict, Mr Casey, dressed in a grey suit and white shirt with a blue tie, stood trembling in the dock and wept as the jury foreman announced "not guilty".

There were whoops of joy from Mr Casey's family in the public gallery of the court, and they embraced him as he left the dock.

Afterwards, he left the court tight-lipped, making no comment on the outcome.

JOINING THE FIGHT: Police are working together

LEADING THE FIGHT: Hate Crime Officer Donna Horwood, Deputy Chief Constable Michelle Dunn, Police and Crime Commissioner David Lloyd, Chief Superintendent Matt Nicholls, Force Lead for Sexual Orientation, Superintendent Dean Patient, Force Strategic Lead for Hate Crime, and Hate Crime Officer Sam Bailey

HOW TO GET INVOLVED

- IT is easy to get involved in hate crime awareness week and support police forces in tackling the issue.
- The message being promoted is "report it, don't ignore it" and police Twitter and Facebook accounts will be posting updates about hate crime using the hashtag #dontignoreit
- Victims of hate crime should report it to police by dialling 101 or 999 in an emergency – but victims who would prefer not to speak to police can report crimes via a third-party reporting centre.
- Incidents can also be reported online at www.report-it.org.uk
- For more information on reporting centres and the support available to victims visit www.herts.police.uk/advice/hate_crime
- Organisations which would like to become a reporting centre should email helen.whitehead@herts.pnn.police.uk

Making a stand in the hate crime campaign

HATE crime is on the rise in Hertfordshire and Essex and an awareness week is aiming to put the spotlight on the issue.

Police forces around the country are showing their support for victims and pledging to be tough on perpetrators throughout the campaign, which started on Saturday and runs until Friday.

Reports of hate crime across Hertfordshire rose by more than a quarter in the past year – from 833 between April and October last year, to 1,061 in the same period this year.

In Essex, the number of incidents in 2016 looks set to top the 1,200 reports for the whole of 2015 – having reached 1,127 by the end of August.

And the number of hate crimes has shot up since 2010, when only 979 incidents were recorded.

Superintendent Dean Patient, who

Police around the country are marking national hate crime awareness week. Chief reporter Sam Meadows found out what's going on in Hertfordshire and Essex...

leads on hate crime for Hertfordshire Constabulary, expressed concern that the issue often goes unreported.

He said: "Hate crime awareness week give us a platform to get the message to them that victims will be taken seriously.

"It is only through people reporting the issue that we can investigate it, support victims and stop it happening again."

According to the police, many victims and witnesses try to ignore hate crime for fear of the repercussions of reporting it.

But Hertfordshire's Police and Crime Commissioner David Lloyd said witnesses had nothing to fear from coming forward.

"Hertfordshire is a safe and tolerant place to live, work and visit, however the figures show that a small number of totally unacceptable incidents do occur," he said.

"We must challenge this behaviour so it is not allowed to fester and cause further damage to our community.

"I commissioned research into the experiences of hate crime victims in order to improve support services for them and the recommendations will now shape the next hate crime strategy for the county.

"However in order to understand the complete picture, it is vital that victims come forward and report what is happening to them."

Essex Police Chief Constable Stephen Kavanagh said: "Hate crime can take many forms from verbal abuse to bullying online to physical assault or damage to property.

"Being the victim of a crime just because of who you are, what you look like or who you love is sickening and we must work together to stop it.

"It's time to hold our hands up and say 'stop'.

"If you or someone you know is the victim of such a crime, I need you to report it to us to give us a chance to investigate and prosecute offenders and to keep you and the different communities that make up our county safe."

Specialist officers support victims

HERTFORDSHIRE Constabulary has a dedicated team of hate crime officers (HCOs) working to support victims.

The officers have received specific training meaning they are well equipped to raise awareness of the prevalence of the issue and support the victims of crime.

The first thing HCOs do at the start of each day is assess all hate crimes in their area and determine whether the victims need additional support.

Sam Bailey covers East Herts and Broxbourne and said hate crime could extend beyond racially aggravated incidents – to crimes targeting the LGBT community.

Irfan Ishaq covers the diverse area of Welwyn Hatfield.

LEADING THE WAY: Hate Crime Officers Irfan Ishaq and Sam Bailey

Harlow reports 76 hate crimes

BROXBORNE is among the worst affected by the rise in hate crime across the eastern region.

The number of crimes reported shot up by 43 per cent, from 76 between April and October 2015 to 109 in the same period this year.

Stevenage experienced and even greater rise – 58 per cent – while reports rose by 24 per cent in North Herts and 15 per cent in East Herts.

In Essex, only 20 offences have been reported in Uttlesford this year, while 84 and 76 hate crimes were reported in Epping Forest and Harlow respectively.

Four offences were also reported at Stansted Airport.

Broxbourne's Chief Inspector Ian Butler said the rise was concerning but was quick to reassure the public.

"After Brexit nationally there was a 42 per cent rise and that sort of plateaued and has come down," he said.

"But I think it has given people more confidence in reporting it."

Addressing the rise in Broxbourne, he said: "I think we are a diverse community and we are on the outskirts of London so the way we interact may be different to other places in the county."

Documentary shows girls can score goals

Ladies' team is subject of encouraging fly-on-the-wall piece

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

THE beautiful game is challenged in a documentary which explores the barriers which prevent women from enjoying the sport they love.

This year Caris Rianne followed Harlow Town Ladies Football Club and Summers Youth Football Club with a camera.

The 24-year-old, of East Park, Harlow, recorded the team as they trained, played matches and talked openly about their experiences.

Like a Girl, a two-part feature, will premiere on website Vimeo in December through Rianne Pictures, the company Miss Rianne founded.

She said: "The documentary is about girls playing football in Harlow and the opportunities available to them which are sadly little."

"Just this year a team folded in Harlow. Girls had to find another club and then face the difficult process of fitting into a new environment."

"It speaks about the criticism girls face in playing the game and their uncertain career prospects."

Miss Rianne was driven to make the film as she was unable to find a team to play for when she was younger. But when she looked to document a team last year she was shocked to find the situation had not improved. Harlow Town Ladies was only founded in time for the 2015/16 campaign.

Mostly working alone for the project, Miss Rianne interviewed players and the team's manager Grant Palmer.

Like a Girl offers an inspiring look into the lives of women who are determined to keep playing.

TEAM TALK: Ladies manager Grant Palmer addresses Harlow Town as Caris Rianne films for her documentary

Miss Rianne added: "During the winter months it was freezing and I admired these girls coming out every week and training with full enthusiasm. It was eye-opening to meet a variety of girls who all shared the love of football but played it for different reasons. They had different stories of criticism they faced.

"I hope people open their eyes to women's football. Many girls struggle to find a home for their hobby. There aren't many girls' teams around and joining a boys' team isn't always a great experience, as we explore in the film.

"But mainly, it's to work on the stigma many people have."

To see the film visit vimeo.com/riannepictures around December time.

I freaked out a bit, says optician who saw the signs

■ From page 1

Rose was convicted of manslaughter by gross negligence and was handed a two year suspended sentence in August of this year.

Mr Jyoti, who has worked at the practice for three and a half years, continued: "It is now routine to ask a customer if they have a headache."

"It is done in all opticians. We have a look at the back of the back of the eye and that is when I saw the swelling."

"I freaked out a bit," he admitted.

"But we have to be calm and you cannot reveal anything (immediately). I contacted a colleague straight away and he agreed with me."

"We had to send the patient straight to Princess Alexandra Hospital."

The woman is now on the road to a full recovery as expert treatment eased pressure on her brain on Saturday.

Now Mr Jyoti, known as VJ to friends and colleagues, is being celebrated for his work.

He added: "There was a famous case where a boy died, we have to be careful every time we see someone."

Symptoms of IH include throbbing and severe headache and changes in vision, while some sufferers have experienced drowsiness and felt confused or irritable.

There are two other varieties: Acute IH which comes on rapidly and chronic IH which is a lifelong condition caused by a build-up of fluid on the brain.

Mental Health Day raises awareness

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

WORLD Mental Health Day was marked across the town to inform residents about the realities of different conditions and the help available.

The 2016 edition, which was held on Monday, carried the theme of Psychological First Aid. Harlow councillor Ian Beckett said it was a day to share positivity and celebrate a healthy mindset.

Speaking at A Celebration of Mental Health and Wellbeing, a conference in Sawbridgeworth Memorial Hall, he said: "I have overcome and managed depressive illness sufficiently to remain in full-time employment all my working life, save for a few months."

"I have benefitted from professional counselling, the NHS and some excellent GPs over the years. I've benefitted from well-being – though I didn't know it had a name, and I've had and continue to have the love and support of family and friends."

"By sharing our stories we remind ourselves we are not alone and reassure others they are not either."

FIRST AID KITS: Mind in West Essex staff speak to shoppers in Harlow Asda

Authors Pete Hirst and Teigh-Ann Shave also spoke, as did health expert Nikki Robinson while music was provided by Refuge.

In his talk Mr Beckett, the mental health champion for Harlow Council, drew reference to the central theme of the day #feel-betterwhen.

The idea of the hashtag is to encourage conversations on social media about mental health issues and allow sufferers to feel a connection.

Mr Beckett added: "What I feel we need to hear more about is ordinary people who have experienced mental problems and survived."

"We need to celebrate our own survival and that of others and we need to talk more openly about how we have survived."

Mind in West Essex, a charity based in Bush Fair, Harlow, developed the idea of putting together first aid packs which were handed out at several locations including Asda in The Water Gardens.

A spokeswoman said: "The idea was to give a little pack of handy tips and practical ways to help our mental health."

"Included in the packs were: A notepad and pen for journalling, dark chocolate as small doses can be good for our mental health, jasmine spray as a stress buster and a stress ball to let our any tension."

"Mind in West Essex ask only that people respond to the feedback cards inside."

GIRL POWER: Karen Clempner is one ambassador for This Girl Can

Exercise champions leading the way

WOMEN are being encouraged to take up sport with the inspiration of three newly chosen exercise champions.

As part of Harlow's This Girl Can initiative, orchestrated by council-run schemes Active Harlow and Active Essex, female residents are being rallied by some less-likely ambassadors.

Karen Clempner, Harlow councillor and parkrun enthusiast, Kelly Harman, town resident and Active Essex employee and Lesley Whitaker, a Harlow dance teacher, have been selected to represent the initiative.

They were chosen as ordinary, yet inspirational, women who can be related to in terms of everyday struggles to keep fit and healthy within busy lifestyles.

Their main role is to undertake advocate roles and encourage women to sign up to the support and information service at www.womeninsport.org/wsw2016

Sport England campaign This Girl Can is thought to be behind a large increase in women exercising nationally.

Harlow's equivalent officially launched with the ambassadors chosen alongside Women's Sport Week.

Their first duty was to attend the Active Harlow Sports Awards on Monday, October 3.

Reunion 59 years after students started school

Brays Grove pupils are planning get-together as they all turn 70

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexesnews.co.uk

BRAYS Grove School may have closed in 2008 but its memory lives on with its first ever pupils reuniting.

The secondary school in Traces Road, Harlow, opened in September 1957 and many of the original class are now celebrating their 70th birthdays.

Barbara Hastie, nee Ludlam, 70, who lives in Chelmsford, is hoping to track down as many of her peers as possible for a gathering.

She said: "We were the first pupils into the school in 1957 and there were about three or four classes. (Later) they brought in children from Epping, Roydon and Nazeing to make about six classes.

"We got to know each other quite well. We could leave school at the age of 15 but many of us stayed on to do our GCEs (O levels)."

The group previously gathered when they turned 50 and later 60 years old, with the event a decade ago attracting 28 people.

This year they will meet on Thursday, November 10 at the Pottery Arms pub, Church Langley Way, Harlow, at 1pm for a buffet lunch costing £10.

Mrs Hastie said 15 alumni have confirmed their attendance but she is particularly keen to trace Linda Cowell, Alan Brian, Pat Kelly and Carol Cooper, who she thinks still live in Harlow.

She added: "It will be fantastic

DO YOU RECOGNISE ANYONE? Former students are getting together for a reunion to see them all again. Not as many of us will be around for our 75th or 80th birthdays."

A class photo from 1961 has been circulated to help find other classmates.

Two of Mrs Hastie's peers have got married after leaving the school and now live in Malta. This year also marks their golden wedding.

Contact Mrs Hastie on (01245) 349384 or fellow organiser Janet North on (01255) 420458.

The only way is Ibiza for prize winner

A MARRIED couple were treated to a surprise getaway to Ibiza, to mark their big day, courtesy of a reality television star.

Michelle Perrin, 33, of Harlow, never had chance to enjoy a honeymoon with her new husband Adam Perrin but they have now received a pair of tickets from budget airline Jet2.com.

Company ambassador Mark approached Michelle on the Stansted Express train service which she was using on her daily commute to work.

The Only Way Is Essex star presented her with tickets as a random act of kindness to tie in with Jet2.com's expansion into London Stansted Airport.

Michelle said: "I was just heading to work and couldn't believe it when Mark Wright appeared.

"He was so friendly and I'm over the moon with my free flights. I'm going to use them for a honeymoon with my husband as we didn't manage to get away."

Five years for phone disguise

A MAN who disguised a stun gun as an iPhone has been jailed for five years under the 1968 Firearms Act.

Frank Winston, 32, of The Briars, Harlow, was arrested on August 22 near his address with the item which was found to be a prohibited weapon under section five of the act.

At Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday he was sentenced to five years' imprisonment and told he will serve at least half his sentence behind bars.

Detective Constable Donna Money said: "On first glance this item appeared to be a normal mobile phone.

"However, on closer inspection it was actually a stun gun capable of releasing in excess of 20,000 volts.

"Items like this are extremely dangerous and the police and justice system will not stand for this, as the sentencing has shown.

"If anybody has an item such as this I urge them to hand them in to the nearest police station immediately or expect to find yourself in a cosy prison cell."

Remembering Arkadiusz Jozwik

not hate

The death of Arkadiusz Jozwik came as a terrible shock on what should have been a beautiful Bank Holiday weekend, instead of enjoying the last of the summer sun a family now has to endure hell.

During Hate Crime Awareness Week 2016, we need to remember Arkadiusz Jozwik and commit ourselves to changing our society for the better.

I would really appreciate it if you would co-sign it and then encourage your friends to do the same

In memory of Arkadiusz Jozwik

At times like this it is more vital than ever that we stand together. We need to show that our Polish friends and colleagues are a welcome and important part of our town, and across wider Essex, and that we support them being here.

It has been a hard time for Europeans living in the UK during the past few months: Brexit has created uncertainty for Poles and EU citizens, worried about the future of their residency, their jobs and their families' situation.

It is at times like these that we must remember all that is best about Harlow: a place where the vast majority of us are good and honest people. A place where we won't tolerate the kind of behaviour.

Harlow is a decent place where all are, and should be, welcome to call their home.

So please, join us not only in condemning the horror that took place on our streets during the Bank Holiday, but in redoubling our efforts to show the world that Harlow is a peaceful place and that there is much more that we have in common with one another than anything which could divide us.

By all pulling together we can make this a town whose name rings proudly. From little actions to big ideas each one of us can be a large part in creating the Harlow we deserve.

TOWER OF CAKE: The World's Biggest Coffee Morning event at Harlow GPCA

Coffee mornings raise charity cash

CANCER was challenged one cup of tea at a time as Harlow played its part in the World's Biggest Coffee Morning. Businesses, charities and clubs opened their doors for the national initiative run by Macmillan Cancer Support.

The Hare pub, Hare Street Springs, Harlow, raised £450.29 in sales of cake and hot drinks, which was a real success for event organiser May Simpson, who is a pub supervisor.

The 22-year-old, of Hare Street Springs, said: "When I got there in the morning I thought nobody was going to come so I am so happy we raised so much.

"Coffee and cake does not cost that much, so it's brilliant.

"We had about 50 people and I think the best was a coffee and walnut cake made by our head chef."

SWEET COMPETITION: Harlow Judo Club

St Nicholas School, Hobbs Cross Road, managed to pull in pupils, staff and parents to a cake sale organised by Year 10 pupils Grace Sagers and Evie Radford. The event raised £1,085. Harlow Judo Club, in Foldcroft, joined the fun by raising £240 for Macmillan with cake being sold all week during various training sessions.

Four ladies teamed up with Reyland Johnson Estate Agents for a sale at the Great Parndon Community Association hall, Abercrombie Way, which raised £1,151.85.

For the second year Sara Cordwell, 36, of Church Langley, was sponsored by the property firm to host the event alongside friends Claire Charlson, Heidi Shacklock and Leanne Law.

Mrs Cordwell said: "Stalls ranged from local honey produce, arts and crafts, jewellery and beauty products. "It was an amazing success and we have topped our fundraising figure from last year. We will definitely be holding another one next year."

MORE people in Harlow will have access to advice on benefits, housing and debt thanks to a £300,000 windfall.

The Big Lottery Fund has this week announced the latest round of community projects across the east of England to benefit from a share of its £1.4m pot.

Among the 47 successful projects is Harlow Advice Centre, based in Harlow library, which has been allocated a total of £313,545 in Reaching Communities grant.

The money will go towards the SMARTAdvice Plus project which provides specialist money advice, assisted information and financial capability training for residents on low incomes or have related issues such as literacy and numeracy difficulties or poor English language skills.

Sue Jones, centre manager, is thrilled with the announcement. She said: "This Big Lottery Fund allows us to help a lot more people in Harlow.

"Unfortunately, there are a lot of people in financial difficulty in the town, even if they are in work as many are on a low income.

Tribunal

"This money enables us to develop our work.

"People phone us wanting information about their rights in lots of different circumstances.

"In other cases, people need a case worker to go to tribunal for them, to apply for debt relief orders or to write to creditors to come to an affordable arrangement. We also work with people who did not realise they were entitled to benefits which would have prevented them from getting into debt in the first place.

"This money will be spent on more specialist advisors so we can do the work that is required.

"It is fantastic news; just brilliant."

Detailed information will be provided via the extended project on benefits, tax credits, housing, money advice and employment and training will be given to assist beneficiaries to search for best buy deals for utility tariffs and insurances.

The charity is working with Harlowsave Credit Union to deliver the project.

Santa is coming to town for a charity run around

Christmas fundraiser will support work of hospice

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HUNDREDS of Father Christmases are coming to town for Santa Dash in aid of St Clare Hospice.

Staff from the Hastingwood-based charity are hoping residents will don the red robe, boots and beard to run 5km or one mile on Sunday December 4 around a circuit starting at The Water Gardens in Harlow.

St Clare provides free care to people with terminal or life-limiting illness and costs more than £4m a year to run, making donations and fundraising events vital.

Jade Clarke, 23, event organiser, said all the staff at the hospice want for Christmas is for the event to raise £10,000 - which will cover expenses for the centre to operate on December 25.

She said: "This year's Santa Dash promises to be a ho, ho, whole lot of fun and a great way to kick off your countdown to Christmas."

"Taking part in our 5km run means you can feel guilt free about all those mince pies and treats you will be having this festive season.

"Our runners really will make a spectacularly festive sight as every participant dons their Santa suit for the yuletide dash."

After the gun sounds participants completing the 5km circuit will follow a route to Harlow Town Park while the mile event will lead through the town centre. Both events are suitable for wheelchairs, push chairs and dogs.

More than 600 fundraisers turned out for St Clare's Midnight Walk in July and the charity is hoping for their biggest ever turnout for the Santa Dash which is sponsored by The Grown Up Chocolate Company in 2016.

Miss Clarke, who will complete a 95km trek across Cambodia for St Clare in November, added: "This year we are aiming to raise £10,000 at our Santa Dash, which is enough to fund our services on Christmas Day."

"While everyone is enjoying one of the most special days of the year, the reality is that our staff are still caring for patients and their families, both in our centre and their own homes."

HO HO HO: Fiona Eaton, Lynne Hooper, Jane Osbourne, Marilyn Stanley and Dani De'Ath

"It would be amazing if our festive fun run could raise enough to pay for 24 hours of our essential care services on Christmas Day."

"What a wonderful way to spread love this Christmas and make a real difference to local families in need."

St Clare officially launched the event last week. Runners are encouraged to book early.

Advanced entry costs £12 for adults and £2.50 for children and £15 and £5 respectively on the day.

The fee includes a Father

Christmas outfit for adults and an elf hat for children. Registration opens at 9.30am and the event sets off 11am.

Registration is now open. To sign up visit www.stclarehospice.org.uk/event/st-clare-santa-dash

Officer is dismissed by panel

A POLICE officer has been sacked for accessing confidential information.

A misconduct panel dismissed Detective Constable Darren Paterson without notice for gross misconduct.

Mr Paterson intentionally accessed the force's computer systems to view, or attempt to view, confidential information that he should not have accessed.

It took place between July 2009 and October 2011, while he worked at Essex Police's College as a trainer.

Mr Paterson also failed to disclose "true and complete" details on vetting forms, Chelmsford County Court heard during the two-day hearing that concluded on Wednesday last week.

Honesty

The panel, chaired by independent legally qualified chairman Siobhan Goodrich, found Mr Paterson's conduct had "breached the standards of professional behaviour" in the areas of confidentiality, duties and responsibilities and honesty and integrity.

After the hearing, Assistant Chief Constable Maurice Mason said: "Officers and staff employed by Essex Police routinely come into contact with sensitive information and intelligence, and it is of the upmost importance that it is handled correctly and only ever accessed for valid policing purposes."

■ POLITICS

Fight decision

I KNOCKED on a lot of doors in the hope of getting elected to Harlow Council earlier this year. Although I was not successful, I gained a pretty clear picture of the amount of time and effort that is required of local councillors – attending meetings, getting to grips with complex issues, talking to residents and taking difficult decisions on our behalf.

My heart therefore goes out to members of Lancashire County Council, whose decision to ban fracking on the grounds of visual impact and noise was overturned today in a landmark ruling by the Conservative government.

What does this say about the administration of our “democracy”?

I hope the people of Lancashire fight this decision hard – there is more than fracking at stake here.

■ POLICY

Fail to see it

I AM not normally moved to respond to letters I read in “Your Views”, but after reading B Hoods letter headed “Insurance”, I felt that a response was required.

Firstly, I assume that B Hood received a policy from his insurance company, which would have shown all policy terms and conditions, including any excess that applied following cancellation of the holiday.

Secondly, the charge applied by the surgery is outside of the insurer’s control so they can hardly be blamed for that.

In view of the above, I fail to see how this would qualify as “another insurance rip-off”.

May I suggest and strongly recommend that B Hood should read the policy wording and query any clause that is not understood before applying blame to others.

JAYNE Ireland from Harlow recently submitted this picture of a bright, pretty rainbow she took on a very gloomy day.

If you have a photograph you have taken in or around Harlow that you would like to be featured as the Star’s Photo of the Week, email

■ DEVELOPMENT

Not affordable

LAST week’s Star reported on Epping Forest District Council’s (EFDC’s) proposals for its local plan. The Government requires every local authority to publish such a plan by the end of next year. This plan sets out how many and where new homes can be built in each district between 2017 and 2033.

EFDC’s plan, which runs to 379 pages, should worry every resident in Harlow because it proposes that some 9,200 homes are built within the Harlow boundary and a total of 16,100 in and around the town. This can mean only one thing, that is the loss of many of the publicly-owned green spaces in the town, on which new homes will be built. It will be interesting to see what Harlow Council’s response will be when it produces its own plan for Harlow. EFDC’s plan includes the proposal to relocate the hospital and use the site for new housing, when only recently the health authority said that such a plan was unsustainable. Other proposals include more than doubling the number of properties at North Weald and building at Latton Priory, both of which will significantly increase traffic congestion at Junction 7 of the M11.

So why are so many thousands of homes needed in Essex and Hertfordshire? The fact is that the population of the Epping Forest District area has only increased by 17,000 in the 50 years from 1961 and 2011 and Harlow has only really seen a rise due to the Church Langley and New Hall developments. Assumptions about population numbers are impossible to forecast, one has only to look back at the last ten years to see that no one predicted the rapid rise in the UK’s population.

The simple fact is, that if you build more homes, more people will come to live in an area. The Epping plan suggest that most of the increase will be due to a natural increase from within the area, but no evidence is given to support this view.

Most of the homes built will be for sale, at prices that only those coming out from London will be able to afford.

And what of the future, what happens in 2033, where will homes be built in the following couple of decades? This and future governments must take radical steps to encourage growth outside of the South-East of England thus reducing the number of homes that will be built and make so-called “affordable housing” really affordable for those already living in the district.

■ HARLOW

Don’t alienate

AFTER recent tragic events, Harlow has a bad name in the press. We really need to make our town somewhere where people want to be. By closing down The Square, we will alienate our town further. We need somewhere where people of any race, gender, creed, class or age, can go, to feel at ease whilst watching up-and-coming bands and comedy.

The venue attracted Eddie Izzard last year, to discuss politics on behalf of the Labour party. The Square is important with regards to the heritage of performing arts and is an inspiration to young people. Plutocracy is being dressed up as democracy here and capitalism is now someone’s cupcake. Replacing a cultural historic venue, with privately rented flats, when there is already a social housing problem within the town, is not the answer. This is not the way this town should be heading within the evolution of the human race.

If this case goes to the High Court, so be it. You can’t kill an idea and you can’t kill an energy.

■ CHARITY

Apply for funds

I WOULD like to let your readers know that funding from our Affinity Water Community Engagement Programme will soon be coming to a close.

Community groups and charities in the area have until October 31 to apply for funding.

The funding we offer is particularly for projects which support sustainable water use, have a positive environmental impact or help disadvantaged groups in the community.

Applications must be for specific projects, not general fundraising and will be reviewed by a team of people from across the company after the closing date.

We are a community-focused organisation serving local people and we want to be involved in projects which benefit the communities we serve, so we would like as many organisations as possible to have the chance to benefit from this programme.

We encourage them to visit our website to apply at www.affinitywater.co.uk/communityengagement

Enterprising fitness idea is expanding into town

Get your running shoes ready for community 6k

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

A POPULAR running event will branch out to new pastures with simultaneous races in three locations.

Give Your Town The Run Around has fast established itself as a favourite in the Hoddesdon calendar of events.

And on Friday, the organisers announced an expansion into Harlow and Potters Bar.

One hundred people will take to the streets in each town on Sunday, October 30 - with a 6k run in Harlow, a 5k walk in Hoddesdon and a 25-mile cycle in Potters Bar.

Organiser Mark White said: "We are very much carrying on with what we know."

"We turn up in the town centre and generate a bit of energy and we go home."

"We are going to be supporting and promoting whatever town we are in."

"We want to bring towns and communities together, but this is a big step up for us."

The event began as an idea for Mr White to get people into his hometown of Hoddesdon and promote healthy and active lifestyles.

It has now grown into a full-blown social enterprise, with a shop front in the town centre named Your Town serving coffee and healthy vegetarian food.

Mr White did not rule out the possibility of trying to do the same in Harlow if the inaugural run goes well.

"To be honest, I have a really open mind about where this could go," he said.

"I just trust the journey, without sounding too romantic."

"What has happened in Hoddesdon has just sort of come about and grown."

Educating

"So, if as a by-product with us turning up in Harlow that happens, good."

"We have ambitions of launching Give Your Town The Run Around and we're looking to play our part in educating people about fitness and health and nutrition."

"It's all what we're about. Wherever it takes us, we will go

COMMUNITY FUN: At one of the Give Your Town The Run Around events

with it."

Mr White also thanked his sponsors, Altdigital in Harlow and Anthony Lessings and VolkerWessels UK for the other towns.

Places for the event, being called the Walk, Run, Ride 100 series, cost £5 and are limited to 100 per event.

'I am inspired by my pupils'

Teachers reveal why they love their job

By Kelly Clark

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

ON WORLD Teacher Day staff from a Harlow primary school have been revealing why they enjoy their job.

Members of teaching staff at Latton Green Primary School, in Riddings Lane, and their colleagues at other schools in the NET Academy group marked the event by telling pupils about the perks of the profession.

Learn

Tonya Couper, a Year 6 teacher, said: "Every class is different and every day is different."

"A good teacher teaches well, but a great teacher learns from their pupils to be even better."

Year 3 teacher Amy Kenny said: "Every day, without fail, I am surprised by my students."

"I am inspired by their ideas. I am amazed by their innate curiosity and enthusiasm to learn."

"The emotional reward and glowing feeling teaching gifts you is a priceless salary that no other job could ever mimic or recreate. I am blessed with the most extraordinary job."

Year 2 colleague Mairead Cranney said: "Teaching is a rare profession – it is one which keeps the brain young, allowing us to continue to grow every day."

"Every day, they surprise me, impress me and constantly show me why this job is so important."

"As a teacher, I am able to be a part of the bigger picture; shaping their little minds so they can become the extraordinary person they deserve to be."

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation hold the initiative to raise awareness, understanding and appreciation for the contribution teachers make to education and development.

Rewarding

Julie Mahon, reception teacher, added: "Teaching is the most rewarding job."

"Knowing I have made a difference to a child's future and given them tools for life that they can use to help them to grow is really satisfying."

JOY TO TEACH: Year Six students under the guidance of Mrs Couper

Youngsters making a real splash

UNEXPECTED warm weather has enabled children at Kiddi Caru Day Nursery to enjoy water games.

Children at the pre-school in Kiln Lane, Harlow have been putting the construction and science outdoor areas to good use, as well as giving nursery manager Louise Farrow a soaking with their water sprayers and balloons.

Ms Farrow said: "The weather's been fantastic so the staff thought it would be the perfect opportunity to let the children make up their own water games to cool down."

"We all had great fun and the children thought it was especially funny when I got the hose out to spray them back after they drenched me."

"The garden has been specially designed for all-year-round use and it's always amazing to see how the children change how they use the equipment out there depending on the weather and time of year. "There really is no limit to their creativity."

Hospital's maternity unit is given arty makeover by students

THE maternity unit at Princess Alexandra Hospital has been brightened up by arty Harlow students.

Year 11 pupils from Burnt Mill Academy, in First Avenue, were commissioned to create a range of prints, drawings and paintings for the department.

Slywia Kuczynska, Aleksandra Miodnicka, Adrianna and Michalina Marciniec painted the unit of PAH, in Hamstel Road, Harlow.

Art teacher Karen Humphreys said: "These fantastic students have all been so busy concentrating on their GCSEs, but they have stayed late to produce the work based on new life."

She added: "I'm so proud of what they have managed to achieve and I hope visitors to PAH really enjoy the art these students have put so much effort into creating."

Helen O'Keefe, change project manager for family and women's services at PAH, said: "I contacted the academy because I wanted to inject some colour into the unit and to reflect what happens on the unit every day."

"I'm so happy with these paintings and drawings. They will make a real difference to the unit."

"The fact we have local students helping us to brighten up our corridors maintains the hospital's family feel."

"They have all done a great job."

Confident Courtney has his eye on Sugar's prize

Designer bids for Apprentice victory

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HE may own a novelty gifts company but Courtney Wood is very serious about his chances of becoming Lord Sugar's new business partner.

Courtney has already avoided the boardroom with the boys' team Titan by winning the first task in the BBC 1 reality series The Apprentice, which began last Thursday and continues tonight.

The 29-year-old lives in Thurrock, but considers himself made in Harlow after starting his design career on the Oakwood Industrial Estate at a company which manufactures gifts.

He said of his experience: "I actually started my design career in Harlow on the Oakwood Industrial Estate on an internship for a novelty gift company."

Industry

"I must have impressed during my placement as I was soon taken on as a full-time designer. For six months I drove to Harlow every day from my home in Thurrock until the company moved to Shoreditch in London."

"I gained three years' experience working in the industry before I decided to set up my own novelty gift company, Bubbegum Stuff.

"Working for a small company was great as I learnt how everything operated."

In a typically bold promotional video Courtney boasted the competition would be easy for him to win and that he would be prepared to use cut-throat tactics if necessary.

"How would I describe myself in one sentence?" he said, "I'll give you one word. Awesome."

The twelfth series of The Apprentice offers 18 candidates the chance to become Lord Sugar's business partner. In a series of tasks the group will battle it out over a 12-week process before the winner is crowned and awarded with a £250,000 investment.

Does Courtney have what it takes to win? The Essex man said: "Everything I have done in my business for the last three years has just been a warm-up."

"I can make deals. I have done that and I have proved myself to do that. Whilst other people say they have done a good job I have proved that I can do a good job."

Warning over 'scary' clown craze

ESSEX Police has warned residents about a clown craze that has seen masked individuals intimidate the public.

The phenomenon originated in the USA but several clowns have been spotted in the UK in the past few days with images circulating on social media.

Now the trend appears to have reached Essex.

No reports of physical threats of harm or violence have been logged, with clowns typically frightening people in passing cars or staring at individuals from a distance.

However, the intimidation caused has prompted police to step in.

In a statement, Acting Chief Inspector Darren Deex, of Essex Police, warned that dressing up to scare others is an offence.

He said: "Essex Police is aware of a number of reports from concerned residents across the county relating to people dressed as clowns, specifically near to schools during opening times."

"It would appear the intentions of these clowns is to scare members of the public. However, to date there have been no reports of physical threats of harm or violence being caused."

Clowns are a common cause of phobia, partly due to the Batman villain Joker and the novel and subsequent film It – the author of which, Stephen King, has called for the craze to end.

Annual awards evening marks a 'special evening in special town'

Inspiring individuals and businesses are honoured

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

INSPIRING individuals and hard-working services were celebrated at the Heart 4 Harlow Business and Community Awards Dinner.

The annual bash at the Manor of Groves Hotel in High Wych was again hosted by town chaplain Robert Findlay and attracted town charities, politicians and company representatives.

Wearing a trademark kilt, Rev Findlay told 280 people gathered: "This is a special evening for a special place."

"Today we honour and say thank you to the business finalists and award-winners with a crystal trophy."

"We also say thank you with the community awards to individuals, charities and community projects who help make Harlow a special place."

He added: "All these illustrate that Harlow is a special place to live and work at the heart of the M11 corridor."

Robert Halfon, Harlow MP, had returned from the Conservative Party conference to attend the event while representatives from the Public Health England science park project were also present.

It was the fifth time Heart 4 Harlow, an initiative that helps link town churches and services, had held the awards and the second time the event has included the business awards.

Guests were treated to a three-course dinner before the awards were handed out.

Heart 4 Harlow trophies were presented to people and groups for their work in the community.

Ian Hudson, manager of Harlow and District Chamber of Commerce, presented the business side and announced the 2017 Harlow Business Exhibition would also be held at the Manor of Groves in June.

He said: "We had about 70 nominations in June and July, and we spent August trying to get it down to 23 finalists."

"The panel chose a winner and that was extremely difficult."

Insignia Group picked up the award for New Business after the firm was created in January this year. It is based in Greenway, Harlow.

Ecstatic

Michael Pagalos, joint director of the management consultancy, said: "We are all ecstatic."

"It is our first award and most of us live in Harlow."

"We are passionate about the community, about the town and the local area."

"We are trying to provide people with jobs and products."

Patrick Mays, from Harlow firm Oakmont Construction, who won an award for Website and Social Media, said: "It was an honour to be at the evening."

"From our perspective, as a local business, we take great pleasure in being put forward."

Build Aid, an international development charity based in Harlow, won a community award.

DO YOU RECOGNISE ANYONE? CCTV images have been released after a spate of bike thefts at Harlow station

Police appeal is launched after succession of cycle thefts

A POLICE appeal has been launched after a number of bikes were stolen from Harlow Town station.

CCTV images have been released of individuals officers would like to speak to in connection with the thefts which took place in August and September.

Police Constable Aaron King, investigating officer, said: "These were brazen thefts carried out in daylight and it is important the people responsible are identified and brought to justice."

It is believed tools were used in the thefts.

Mr King continued:

"Unfortunately, bicycles remain a popular target for thieves and it's important cyclists use high quality locks to secure their bikes.

"Officers regularly hold cycle surgeries throughout the Essex rail network where cyclists can get their bike security marked for free.

"Where possible, we recommend two locks are used and we urge cyclists to register their bikes at www.bikeregister.com for free."

Anyone with information is asked to contact British Transport Police by texting 61016 or calling 0800 40 50 40 quoting reference 258 of October 3.

New CCTV images are released after attack

MORE images have been released of four men police wish to speak to after an assault in Harlow.

Two Polish nationals were confronted outside the William Aylmer pub in Kitson Way, Harlow, on September 4.

Essex Police initially said one line of investigation is that the incident was a hate crime.

It happened just hours after the town community held a silent march in memory of fellow Pole Arkadiusz Jozwik, who died after another attack at The Stow, Harlow, on August 29.

Both victims of the second assault are in their 30s and were set upon by a group of four or five males around 3.35am.

This latest update includes better quality images displaying men police still wish to speak to as the investigation continues.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Harlow CID on 101, or they can contact Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111 or via an anonymous online form at

Warning issued after rise in carbon monoxide deaths in Essex

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

CARBON monoxide poisoning has already caused scores of preventable deaths and poses a threat to residents with winter on the way.

But despite a warning from Public Health England, many people in Essex are unaware of the risk posed by the gas known as the silent killer.

Freedom of Information requests have shown a 58 per cent rise in poisoning cases in the county, with the young, and especially children, the worst affected.

Carbon monoxide can come from poorly maintained boilers, heaters and cookers but is odour-less which makes it nearly impossible to detect.

Awareness campaign Project Shout found there were 73 incidents in Essex in the 2015/16 winter months, which compared to 46 the previous year.

A poll carried out by the Star found 67 per cent of a group of readers do have a CO detector installed in their home.

Fossil

Dr Sotiris Vardoulakis, head of environmental change at Public Health England's Centre for radiation, chemical and environmental hazards, said: "Many of these deaths take place between November and February due to faulty fossil fuel and wood burning appliances leaking this lethal gas.

"To lower the risk, we recommend that people should ensure that their fossil fuel and wood burning appliances are regularly checked by an appropriately registered engineer."

Dr Vardoulakis also said that a CO alarm should be installed in every room of a house which has an appliance.

These comments were echoed by Rob Lyon, campaign director for Project Shout.

He said: "These numbers are very concerning, particularly the rise in cases amongst the most vulnerable, namely children and the elderly."

"Carbon monoxide poisoning can only be detected by an alarm as you can't see, smell or taste it.

TAKE ADVICE: Put up carbon monoxide detectors in your home

"Children and older people are particularly at risk because their bodies are more susceptible and in the case of some older people, are less likely to keep their appliances serviced."

Best of West award winners are crowned at glitzy ceremony

INSPIRATIONAL medics were awarded for their hard work and dedication in the NHS Best of West Awards 2016.

Eleven winners were crowned in different categories from West

Essex Clinical Care Commissioning Group (CCG) which includes Harlow, Epping and Uttlesford.

Award winners included Angie Pearson, a counsellor with

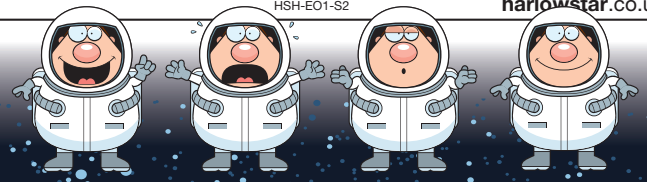

Waltham Abbey Youth 2000, who picked up the overall Best of West Award and Tim Atkinson, a Saffron Walden man who leads musical therapy, who won the Volunteer of the Year Award.

All shortlisted for an award gathered at a swanky ceremony at the Zinc Arts Centre in Ongar following the CCG's annual meeting.

Deborah Fielding, accountable officer at NHS West Essex, said: "These awards are an excellent way of showcasing the talent and dedication of people in West Essex."

WOW THAT'S BIG: The dinosaur footprint found in the Gobi Desert
Okayama University

One of the largest dino footprints ever found

REMAINS of dinosaurs continue to be found millions of years after their extinction. Scientists from Okayama University in Japan have discovered one of the largest ever dino footprints in the Gobi Desert in northern China.

Despite dating back almost 70 million years, the footprint, which measures one metre, has three distinct claw marks and is thought to belong to a titanosaur. The herbivore, which weighed around 70 tonnes, can be spotted from their small heads and famously long necks. Like the majority of dinosaurs a titanosaur was a herbivore and reportedly weighed an estimated 70 tonnes. It lived during the Cretaceous period, a time that spans almost 80 million years. The remains of a titanosaur were last found in Argentina in 2014. The Japanese scientists are hoping that the footprint will help them find out more about the creatures that once wandered the earth.

COLD CASE TEAM: Retired detective gives insight into dealings of police squad

New book reveals work that went into solving 15-year rape mystery

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertssexnews.co.uk

WHEN an innocent 15-year-old schoolgirl was plucked from the streets and raped, it seemed implausible that she and her family would have to wait 15 years for justice.

The girl was playing in a school concert on December 11, 1997, but left early to visit her boyfriend who had fallen ill.

She began walking to her boyfriend's house, but was raped in Harlow on a grassy hillock known as Ten Metre Wood before she arrived.

Investigation

Despite a thorough investigation, a BBC Crimewatch reconstruction and DNA screenings of around 100 men, the perpetrator – Jon Molt – was not found until 2012.

Molt, then 34 and living at Rushes Mead, was jailed for eight and a half years after a cold case investigation team used familial DNA to match him to the crime.

This horrific case is just one of dozens of investigations which retired detective Ray Newman helped to crack as part of an elite squad of former police officers.

JAILED: Jon Molt, who raped a schoolgirl in Harlow in 1997

STORIES TO TELL: Retired detective Ray Newman has published a book about his work on the cold case investigations team

Mr Newman, who now lives in Rochford, was a police officer for more than 30 years before retiring in 2000.

He joined the squad – known as the Major Crime Review Team – in 2002 and has now published a book chronicling his experiences.

The squad reopened dozens of cold cases which remained unsolved in Essex, and continues to investigate cases today.

The Harlow rape – which went unsolved for so long – is a large part of the book, alongside the shooting of Italian Giuseppe Guirone in Nazeing in 1978.

"We worked on several live unsolved murders as well as the cold cases," Mr Newman said.

"There were domestic homicides, rapes like the one in Harlow, industrial manslaughter cases.

"We were really just trying to help our colleagues out."

He added: "These kind of cases can be frustrating. Usually when you do a murder investigation you know who has done it.

"We had a case in Chelmsford where we knew a woman had been killed by her grandson but we didn't have the evidence.

Frustrating

"It wasn't until years later we managed to find what we needed.

"It's frustrating for the families. Especially if you're dealing with a missing person who is believed to have been murdered but you don't have a body.

"Those people live for the rest of their lives not knowing what happened to their loved one. It's great thing when you can find answers for them."

And Mr Newman hopes the

TRAGIC: Sabah Usmani and her five children died in the blaze in Barn Mead, Harlow

APPEAL OVER FIRE DEATHS

ONE of the cases which Ray Newman hopes may be given a boost by his new book is the death of six members of a family in a fire.

Sabah Usmani and her five children perished in the blaze in Barn Mead, Harlow, on October 15, 2012, leaving her husband Abdul Shakoor as the only survivor.

Despite a great deal of work the investigation hit a brick wall and Essex Police most recently appealed for information this time last year – three years on from the incident.

An inquest at Chelmsford Coroners' Court in 2014 heard that the evidence suggested the incident murder – but an accidental cause could not be ruled out.

Dr Usmani died along with Hira, 12, Sohaib, 11, Muneeb, nine, Rayyan, six and Maheen Shakoor, three.

publicity surrounding these past cases will help deter people from committing crime in the future.

"Essex Police have done some great work and I think it gives people hope," he said.

"When people see the lengths we go to to solve these crimes it might deter them committing crime.

"I also hope people might read the book and come forward with information about cases which remain open."

■ The book, called Finally Laid To Rest, is available for £6.99 on Amazon

Two eateries up for takeaway award

CAFE Pizzeria and Willetts Real Smokehouse have made a shortlist for the Best Takeaway in the East prize as voting begins.

The eateries, respectively in Bush Fair and Post Office Walk, Harlow, are two of ten restaurants up for the award, run in association with delivery website Just Eat.

They need your votes to stand a chance of winning.

British Takeaway Awards officials have counted public votes collected over the past month to compile the shortlist.

The public has until October 24 to vote for their favourite with the top five making it to the national awards ceremony which is a glitzy bash at The Savoy Hotel in London on December 5.

Winners

There 13 regional award winners will be announced and will collect a £1,000 prize while the overall winner will receive a cheque for £5,000.

Hertford takeaway Galos UK finished second overall in 2015 and won the East prize. Andrea

Allen, 48, restaurant manager, said: "We love what we do and we are very excited."

"It is nice to be rewarded for that we do. It's terrific to be nominated."

"I want to say thank you to everyone that voted for us."

The next stage of the competition will also involve a secret diner ordering from the outlet and grading quality of food and customer service.

Children love Shakespeare with Bardolph

In celebration of 400 years of Shakespeare, children are given the chance to enjoy The Bard's work with Bardolph's Box.

Drawing inspiration from several plays the small-scale production is aimed at children aged eight to 12 and will be performed twice at Harlow Playhouse on Saturday, October 22.

The performance follows a run at various schools in the town.

The plot sees protagonist Bardolph washed up on a distant shore where he meets characters from plays including Henry IV, Henry V, The Merry Wives of Windsor and The Two Gentlemen of Verona.

Nicola Pollard, artistic director of Up The Road Theatre, said: "We're really looking forward to introducing children and their families to Bardolph and his wonderful world."

"Through an exciting myriad of characters, we're exploring a number of Shakespeare's plays, including The Comedy of Errors, Antony and Cleopatra, The Tempest and Twelfth Night.

"Our audience is encouraged to help young Bardolph on his first big adventure, as he gets his friends out of fixes and deliberates their dilemmas."

She continued: "With live music, puppetry and a good dollop of humour, Bardolph's Box is a brilliant way to celebrate Shakespeare's 400th anniversary."

Gusto

"I'm really proud of our first production. We performed to 1,700 children in the spring, the majority of whom joined in with gusto as they assisted Bardolph in his quest."

"It's a lively piece, lots of fun and very energetic. Stuart Crowther is hugely engaging as Bardolph. It's great seeing families enjoy the show together. Although designed for a younger audience we always intended it to be a show that adults could also enjoy."

IN CHARACTER: Gareth Wildig plays several characters who explore a number Shakespeare's plays with humour, puppetry and music

Show times for Saturday, October 22 are 11am and 2pm. Performed as part of Pay What You Can season audiences are invited to make a donation at the end.

Bad Girls behind bars again

arkhall Prison, home to television's most notorious jail birds, has been off our screens for a decade but director Jody Randall still has a taste for the slammer.

His project Bad Girls the Musical takes some of the best-loved characters and storylines from the first and second series of ITV's cult-classic and adds a note of drama with songs.

Yvonne, the Julie and Shell, all regulars from Bad Girls in its 1999-2000 era, will be on stage at The Victoria Hall Theatre, Bury Road, Old Harlow, from Tuesday, October 11 until Saturday, October 15.

Nightly performances will begin at 8pm.

After taking charge of previous Harlow Theatre Company musical Rent, which was a hit last year, Jody said Bad Girls was an excellent fit for their autumn season.

"We had a set of choices last year," said the 41-year-old, who lives in Harlow.

"We had done a few male dominated shows already, such as Mojo at the beginning of the season which had an all-male cast, and we wanted to do something to appeal to all of the theatre's membership. Women make up a big part of that.

"It fitted with what we wanted to do as a company and everything came together."

But does a show with an all-female cast have a cross gender appeal?

"I think there is an appeal

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE: The Bad Girls cast before Harlow Theatre Company performance at Victoria Hall performance

across the board," continued Jody.

"People all remember the television show, and this will be the same (theme) but adapted into a musical."

More than nine million people watched Bad Girls at its peak and the show ran for a successful eight series until 2006.

Unafraid to deal with challenging subject matter, a multi-strand plot included storylines involving bullying, drugs, abortion and prisoner-guard relationships.

The intimidating Yvonne and psychopathic Shell, who both feature in the musical version, are perhaps among the scariest women to have been in a TV drama.

Jody added: "It follows inmates and looks at the relationships between each other and the prison officers. It builds to a crescendo after the death of an inmate."

"It (the musical) is quite hard to explain. It pieces two series' together."

Bad Girls the Musical was written by TV series creators Maureen Chadwick and Ann McManus with music and lyrics courtesy of Kath Gotts.

It was enjoyed in Leeds and the West End theatres in 2006 and 2007 before the rights became available, and it will be this version performed in Harlow with no re-writing necessary.

The difficult and sometimes upsetting scenes in the television drama have not been diluted on stage and Jody is keen to point out this is not one for children.

"We started (rehearsing) back in July," he continued. "We all knew each other and it has been big fun."

"There is an element of nerves but I am sure they are going to do a really good piece."

Four of the main roles will be filled by Joce Johnson (slightly confusingly) as Julie Johnson, Michelle Jimenez-Alder as Yvonne and Sarah Randall as Julie Saunders.

Tickets cost £15 or £12 for concessions and are available to buy now.

The band is open to young people aged 12 to 14 and practice once a week with no membership fee.

Wolfhounds are back at the Square

ESSEX indie garage-pop legends The Wolfhounds return to The Square this Saturday, October 15.

The John Peel favourites had regular indie chart hits in the 1980s and 1990s, and are now about to release an incendiary new album, Untied Kingdom (Or How To Come To Terms With Your Culture).

This Clubbobb night also has a live set from Arndaes featuring members of Collapsed Lung, Country Teasers, Thrilled Skinny and The Knockouts.

Opening the evening will be a solo set from the brilliant Keith John Adams.

T-rex-ellent pirate show is thrilling and heart-warming

CAPTAIN Flinn and the Pirate Dinosaurs 2: The Magic Cutlass is the theatre production set to embark on a UK tour and it docks in at Hertford Theatre on October 15.

Les Petits Theatre Company, responsible for the hugely successful and award-winning Captain Flinn and the Pirate Dinosaurs was winner of the Primary Times Children's Choice Award 2012. The company return to the high seas with The Magic Cutlass, the hugely anticipated sequel based on the award-winning book by Giles Andreae and Russell Ayto.

The play is a lively and colourful adaptation of the book which is a story about Captain Flinn, a six year old boy and his quest to save his friends Pearl and Tom from the clutches of Captain T-Rex and his crew of dinosaur pirates.

Talking to Hal Chambers, the Director of the play, he says "When you read through the books they seem almost unstageable so it was quite a feat to get it on stage."

Being the Captain of the Pirate Dinosaurs, the T-Rex had to have an audacious and powerful presence on the stage so Max Humpries, the puppet designer, came up with an eight foot tall puppet dinosaur who towers over the cast and audience. Initially on first meeting him he appears incredibly menacing however the audience soon realise that actually he's a bit rubbish at being a dastardly villain as are the other dinosaurs.

The show takes the audience on a rollercoaster of emotions with lots of costume and scene changes to keep everyone hooked.

"Every three to four minutes there is a new surprise, mixing up the rhythm of the show" says Hal. "There are duelling scenes, songs and even an underwater scene where Flinn has to travel to the bottom of the sea to rescue the Cutlass from an Octopus."

The adaptation is a family theatre show with subtle jokes for the adults as well as big laughs for the whole audience.

The book is bright and eccentric and it seems Hal and his team have managed to encompass all of that and more into the theatre show. And although the performance can be scary and thrilling, ultimately it has a big heart and there is warm message being told about the importance of friendship and sharing.

Big showdown at Wrestlefest

WRESTLEFEST will return to Bishop's Stortford later this month.

The one-off show will take place at the Rhodes Arts Complex with the aim of raising money for charity.

Wrestlefest is the brainchild of producer Phil Dale, who is also the artistic producer at Rhodes, and director Mike Fentiman, who has since forged career working on shows for the Royal Shakespeare Company and West End shows such as Made in Dagenham.

Wrestlefest was first staged at the Playhouse in Harlow on a regular basis between 2005 and 2008 and developed a cult following of fans who loved its mix of American-style wrestling and British pantomime.

Phil said: "Wrestling is as much theatre as it is sport - we all know that really, but often people don't want to buy into it."

"So many times I hear people say 'oh, but it's not real'. That couldn't be further from the truth - what you see is very real. These guys are highly trained athletes and the spectacle they put on is breathtaking."

The show is being staged to raise money for CALM, a suicide prevention charity following the recent passing of both Phil's brother Mark and also Mark Benson, a professional wrestler who worked on the shows in the past.

■ Wrestlefest - The Return takes place on Sunday, October 23 at 5pm at The Rhodes in Bishops Stortford. Tickets cost £14, £12 for concessions and £48 for a family ticket from the Box Office on (01279) 710200 or at www.rhodesbishopsstortford.org.uk

Too much of a good thing can be bad...

American Honey

DRAMA/ROMANCE: (15) 164mins
Director: Andrea Arnold
Starring: Sasha Lane, Shia LaBeouf, Riley Keough, Arielle Holmes, McCaul Lombardi, Crystal B Ice

Kids just wanna have fun but the pursuit of reckless abandon comes at a price – virginity, childhood innocence, morality – in Andrea Arnold's mesmerising, naturalistic portrait of disenfranchised youth.

Semi-improvised like her previous films Red Road and Fish Tank, American Honey is a bravura study of loneliness, abandonment and sexual awakening, illuminated by director of photography Robbie Ryan's documentary-style camerawork that remains uncomfortably close to characters as their emotional states unravel.

This voyeuristic intimacy heightens in the explicit though dramatically necessary sex scenes, which leave nothing to the imagination and are awkwardly fuelled by adrenaline.

We know every inch of the actors' bodies by the time the end credits roll.

Admittedly, it is a test of endurance to reach that point and Arnold, and her editor Joe Bini, could have happily trimmed at least 20 minutes.

In this instance, you can have far too much of a good thing.

Once again, director Arnold has unearthed a dazzling raw talent in lead actress Sasha Lane, who was spotted sunbathing on a beach and was cast without previous experience in front of the camera.

This gamble pays off handsomely – Lane burns brightly in every scene, bristling with defiance and vulnerability as her free-spirited character barrels towards the cusp of womanhood at frightening speed.

Eighteen-year-old Star (Lane) has been left to care for two young siblings, while her mother implodes on drugs.

The children scour dumpsters for discarded food still fit for consumption and at night, Star endures the groping hands of her abusive stepfather.

During a sortie to a supermarket, Star encounters a group of fun-loving teenagers led by Jake (Shia LaBeouf), who claims to be the manager of a door-to-door magazine subscription business.

"You can make 300 dollars a day if you're good," Jake assures Star.

Initially, she isn't convinced by his bluster and haphazard attire, which he jokingly describes as "a little Donald Trumpish".

Determined to escape the degradation of home, Star hits the road with Jake and the other kids, including misfit Pagan (Arielle Holmes) and blonde prankster Corey (McCaul Lombardi).

As they arrive at a motel, Star encounters the business' iron-fisted boss, Krystal (Riley Keough), who only retains youngsters that sell subscriptions by peddling fake sob stories.

Failure won't be tolerated.

Aside from a bloated running time, American Honey is a technical tour de force that also resonates on a deep emotional level.

We feel every sucker punch to Star's destiny and Arnold underscores these pivotal moments with pop and rock hits by the likes of Calvin Harris and Rihanna, Bruce Springsteen and Lady Antebellum.

Newcomer Lane delivers a performance of unvarnished, painful honesty that holds our attention, even during the few moments when Star seems to be heading for disaster and we silently consider averting our gaze.

FIRST DRIVE Nissan GT-R

DARE TO BE DIFFERENT

By David Ward

Nissan might generally still be known for a competent band of family cars like the Qashqai and little Micra but to any true petrol head the flagship GT-R super sports car has always been something different taking on the might of rivals like Porsche and winning over customers to the marque.

It all came from the humble beginnings of the Skyline GT-R back in the Seventies and with progressive development over the years the current GT-R has now become something of an icon despite its hefty price tag.

Next year's model is just being released and it's without doubt the best ever and the ultimate sports car for drivers who want racing circuit-like performance but with a few home comforts on board to make it an easy day-to-day normal road performer.

Buyers of the GT-R though do so for its mechanical hardware and outright performance and not its name badge or anything else and with this latest incarnation it will leave them suitably impressed with the subtle changes and improvements the Nissan backroom have carried out.

For starters there's now 20bhp more from the 3.8-litre V6 twin turbocharged engine with 562bhp on tap capable of accelerating this car from 0 to 62mph in a claimed 2.7 seconds and having a circuit-only usable top speed of 196mph - all for a fiver under £80,000.

Nissan's GT-R brand manager Anthony Jones said that apart from the extra horsepower they've made the rev range wider, provided more torque, created an extra 20 per cent more airflow through the engine, slimmed down the rear pillars as part of better driver vision, revised the interior with better quality finish (Nappa leather) and simplified rotary dials on a better designed dashboard (the button count is down from 27 to 11).

In addition he adds there's a neater, slightly larger at eight inches touch screen with improved acoustics too so that the driver can enjoy a better sound of the engine when in full flow and the driver's shift paddles are now closer to the steering wheel for easier use.

Driving this latest version and two improved aspects over the previous model stand out - that harsh ride has gone and out at motorway speeds the intrusive noise in the cabin has also disappeared.

As a driver what is vastly better this time around is the gearshift of the dual-clutch automatic transmission's six-speed gear ratios and along with a much lighter but still positive feel to the car's steering it's a far more civilised car for daily use.

Out on the motorway it's generally much quieter, even with more boost pressure, and push it hard say between 3,000rpm and the 7,000 rpm limiter and along with no defined turbo lack it's acceleration is quite electrifying.

There's again a choice of three dampers which are equally impressive depending on how the driver wants to drive and what road conditions underneath are like - even in comfort mode on ordinary A and B class roads it offers a nice supple and now softer ride.

Driven a bit more sportily, as most buyers will undoubtedly do so, then the car will respond accordingly with good acceleration when needed and it offers good, sharp turn-in and flat, fast cornering when available.

Needless to say the brakes are excellent and as one would expect easily do their job when needed without any dramas and it thankfully remains a sports car to be enjoyed, on or off the race circuit - a brief few laps of the Thruxton race circuit proved the former right too.

As for prices then as expected this latest GT-R is a bit more expensive - around a couple of grand on average - but apart from the enhanced performance and improved interior finishes the levels of standard equipment on board have also been increased.

The starting model called Pure comes in at £79,995 followed by the Recaro at £87,995 and the Prestige at £91,995 and for those truly petrol anoraks as we say who want to drive it on a race circuit there is a Track edition at £91,995 with an even more spectacular performing GT-R Nismo version coming soon.

Overall it's certainly a subtly improved GT-R which won't disappoint the real sports enthusiast whilst for other less so it's now an even more quieter, civilised but excitingly fun-to-drive super sports car:

Handy Andy pops up with a terrific hockey treble

ANDY BOUGHTWOOD'S stunning hat-trick helped Harlow Hockey Club's first team make it four wins from four games at the start of the season.

Craig Chorleton was also on the scoresheet as Harlow beat Clacton 4-0 to stay joint top of the East Men's League Division Five South East table.

Harlow got off to a good start and appeared to be mastering the pass and move style that has regularly seen them win games so far this season.

Their good play on the break finally paid off as Boughtwood opened his account for the afternoon. Harlow were awarded a penalty flick and it was duly dispatched past the Clacton keeper.

Despite the going ahead Harlow's defence was called on numerous times throughout the opening period, with Luke Krzoska saving two short corner shots off the right post.

Their defensive efforts were rewarded as they went into the break with a clean sheet intact and a slender one goal advantage.

The table toppers came out quickly after the break and doubled their lead early on.

Chorleton went on a superb run through the Clacton midfield and defence, before entering the D and executing a stunning reverse stick hit into the net.

The third goal came from Boughtwood, who took the ball into the D and struck an unbelievable effort into the top of the net, leaving opposition and his own team impressed.

Harlow continued to absorb pressure from Clacton, who pushed Harlow hard in the last ten minutes.

A few defensive shorts were cleared by the back line and Rich Norris produced some good saves to maintain the clean sheet.

And Boughtwood completed his hat-trick and Harlow's scoring late on, converting after an aerial assist from Adam Odey.

Harlow's 4-0 victory also typified their record so far in what has been a particularly impressive start to the new season.

Carinne's the star on road

RUNNING: Carinne Jay was the star performer as Harlow Running Club members competed in the Essex 10 Mile Road Race.

She won the silver medal in her age category, an improvement on her bronze medal at last week's Half Marathon Championships. Jay finished in 98th place out of 446 finishers and second Female Vet 45 in a superb 1hr 12min 12sec.

First back for Harlow was Jamie Jephcott in 45th place in 1.06:52 followed by Andy Bradley 82nd in 1.10:36.

Martyn Coulter was 100th in a personal best (PB) time for the distance of 1.12:56. John Tennant came 136th in 1.15:40, Catherine Ridge 146th in 1.16:22 (PB), Colin Moody 152nd in 1.17:10 and Martin McColgan 191st in 1.21:16.

Meanwhile at the Edmonton Run The River 10K, Rob Lowe was victorious in first place out of 227 finishers in a fantastic 36:20. He was followed home by Alex Smith eighth in 39:13, Adrian Fell 15th and first Vet 40 in 41:06. Sharon Wright 28th and second Female in 43:20 and Wendy Spring 106th in 52:20.

At the Great Cumbrian Run Half Marathon Daniel Jephcott finished in 201st place out of 1133 finishers in a PB time of 1:37:19.

At the Great Eastern Half Marathon at Peterborough, Sean Flynn finished in 755th place out of 4247 finishers in 1:39:40.

The Royal Parks Half Marathon, running through four London parks, saw Michele Hyde finish in 5310th place out of 15,980 finishers in 1:54:52 (PB), Kerry Mavris was 6338th in 1:58:10 (PB) and Pushpa Mistry 9787th in 2:10:32.

Andy Kinny travelled to Ukraine for the Kiev Half Marathon and finished in 853rd place out of 906 in 2:21:25.

At the Reims Marathon in France, Will Wall finished in 324th place out of 813 finishers in 3:48:14.

Medal joy for young players

JUDO: Two young players from Harlow Judo Club enjoyed success at the weekend, each bringing home a medal.

Ten-year-old Owen Lambert and nine-year-old George Franks travelled to High Wycombe to compete in the Micklefield Judo Club Green Belt and Under competition.

Owen won all five of his fights and claimed the gold medal, whilst George won three of his four fights and took home a silver medal.

They both competed in the novice (red belt) to sixth man (yellow belt) section of the event.

Head coach Mick Ellis praised both players for how well they listened to instructions.

He was also left very pleased with how they and other players in the club were doing so far with their development.

HARLOW Rugby Club's unbeaten run at home continued on Saturday with a 34-26 win over fellow high fliers Southwold.

A dominant first half saw the hosts go into the break 29-5 up, and despite a spirited fight back from the visitors they held on for the win.

Playing down the hill, Harlow got off to the perfect start when Michael Weston, captaining the side in Shaun Robert's absence, claimed the kick-off ahead of the visitors' pack. Two phases later, Harlow scored in the corner when Andrew Tarsey burst through the Southwold defence and off-loaded to Ryan McGlone to touch down in the corner.

Dominate

The home side continued to dominate the opening exchanges, with excellent defence and counter rucking ensuring Southwold could not get going and they soon found themselves 12-0 down. Good work from the Harlow pack in turning the ball over was followed by excellent hands from the backs, first from Scott Whitby, then McGlone who put Rob Mackie away for a walk over try.

Harlow didn't take their foot off the gas and refused to let Southwold out of their own 22. The pressure eventually told with Tarsey capitalising on a wild pass to intercept and score in the corner.

Minutes later Harlow gained ideal field position for a strike move and scored their fourth try – this time Mackie finishing off a well worked team move following more good work from Mark Twiner in midfield.

With 35 minutes gone Southwold finally went on the attack and after a poor chase from Harlow, touched down in the corner, with the conversion missed.

The hosts went back on the attack in the final five minutes of the half. Weston carried the ball over the halfway line before off-loading to Mackie who completed his hat-trick.

The second half was a different story altogether with Southwold immediately on the front foot.

Using the slope to their advantage, they began to dominate the set piece and quickly scored two converted tries to get back within ten points.

Harlow rallied on the hour with spirited defence eventually forcing a mistake. Tarsey managed to break out and run the ball in from 60 metres for his second try.

Harlow held on and man of the match Tarsey was pleased they kept their unbeaten run going. "We're delighted with result," he said.

"We showed a lot of character in the second half to secure a good win against a decent team."

Wonderful Woods produces fine finish

ELIZABETH WOODS produced a fantastic sprint finish to win the U11 girls 1500m cross country race for Harlow Athletic Club (HAC).

The Essex Cross Country League fixtures got underway on Saturday and she outsprinted her nearest rival by just one second to take home the gold medal at One Tree Hill Country Park in Stanford Le Hope.

As well as Elizabeth's first-placed finish, HAC had three other podiums at the very hilly and testing course.

A wet and warm day, against the toughest competition in Essex and the surrounding counties meant the results were particularly good for the club.

HAC debutant Jake Lacey came third in the U11 boys' 1500m race with a time of 5min 5sec.

A fantastic third place in the U15 girls' 4500m went to a hugely improving athlete in Savanna Sirkett.

She produced a superb run to come home in a fast 16:34.

Lewis Harknett also picked up third place in the U17 boys race. He finished the gruelling 6500m course in 22:43.

Seventeen runners from HAC took part in total, with the U13 girls coming fifth overall out of 13 teams.

Ellen Savidge came 13th with a time of 14:31, Mackenzie Cranfield was 27th in 15:37, and Katie Brennan completed the side by coming 40th, in 17:04.

In the U11 girls, Lilly Smith came sixth in 6:09 and Sophie Brennan 14th in 9:04.

Josh Knightbridge came home in seventh spot in the U11 boys in 5:30, Freddie Sperring was eighth in 5:34 and Sam Putt 16th in 6:06.

The U13 boys competed in the 3500m race, Daryn Gerty was 20th in 14:31 and in 32nd place was Oliver Nelson in 16:03.

Joe Morgan came 15th in the U15 boys' 4500m, with a time of 14:47 and Jamie Putt came home in 15:11 to finish 22nd.

Finally in the U17 races, Lottie Rowedder came 11th in the women's section in 20:41 and Owen Harknett came 26th in 25:06 in the men's section.

The next fixture is at Hylands Park, Chelmsford on the final Saturday of October.

Basketball club hitting new heights

NUMBERS continue to grow for Harlow Hawks Basketball Club as the new season began last week.

The club hit new heights halfway through last season as all the junior teams were filled and the U14 age group added a second side.

This is partly down to the success of former Hawks players who have gone on to bigger and better things.

Joshua Steel went through the Hawks' junior programme and has recently represented Great Britain U20s in the European Championships, as well as being on a full scholarship at Duquesne University in the USA.

In addition to Steel's success, Claire Gold represented England U17s in the summer of 2015 and head coach Shab Niaz (pictured above) spoke of the club's desire to increase the number of girl members.

The girls returned to a regular time slot at Harlow Leisurezone on a Saturday afternoon last year, and subsequently saw their numbers grow.

That growth has seen the club schedule a number of girls' games against other clubs in the upcoming weeks.

This is the section of the club that head coach Shab Niaz wants to grow and he encouraged any girls interested to get in touch, regardless of whether they've played basketball before or not.

The senior side will also be looking for more success this year as a number of last year's successful U18 squad make the step up, as well as some other new faces joining the squad.

They will compete in Division One of both the Herts and Essex County Leagues after winning promotion from Division Two of the Essex League last season. They did the double in their first season in the Essex League, winning both the League Title and the Play-off final.

Unfortunately their season started with defeat at Berkhamsted Bears last week. Despite leading 27-23 after the second quarter, the Hawks struggled as the game wore on and ended up going down 64-56.

Hawks boss Danny under no pressure

Chapman confident team will turn things around

By Matt Storey
matt.storey@hertsexnews.co.uk

DANNY CHAPMAN doesn't feel under any pressure from above, despite a poor run of form that has seen Harlow Town pick up just one win in eight games.

Havant and Waterlooville were the latest to profit from a leaky Hawks defence on Saturday, finding the net five times to make it 12 goals conceded in just three games for Chapman's men.

But the Hawks manager felt Saturday's 5-2 defeat may have been a turning point for his side, as they kept fighting until the bitter end against a team he described as "miles ahead of anyone else in this league".

He said: "I wouldn't say I feel under pressure necessarily. I think the minute you stop feeling pressure it's time to walk away from it, because something isn't right as there should always be some sort of pressure."

"We've been successful in recent seasons and we want to get back to that because it has been a tough stint."

"Everything is better this year, the players, the managers, even some of the stadiums and the adjustment is still happening."

"But I don't feel under any pressure. I know what we do works and the attitude of the players on Saturday showed me something."

"Even though we were 5-1 down at one point, we were still trying to do the right things and our intent was better."

"If they keep showing that then we can definitely turn our form around."

Errors

Individual errors cost the Hawks again in the defeat, which has become a recurring theme in recent games.

The boss admitted that changes may have to be made soon if individuals don't learn their lesson.

"Individual errors are costing us again and we've spoken about it before, those players need to start cutting them out."

"Two of the goals on Saturday were poor individual mistakes."

"If someone keeps making mistakes it does make you think, do we need to make some changes?"

"We want to stick by everyone who's got us here but if they keep making mistakes and they don't change, then we may have to look at bringing other people in."

"But there are no irons in the fire as such at the minute."

After three away games in a row the Hawks return home on Saturday for the visit of Staines Town.

Their form at The Harlow Arena has been good so far this season and Chapman hopes one good result will put their recent woes behind them.

"I think it is just a case of getting a win under our belts and we've been good at home this season," he said.

"There is no question that if we get one good result we can build up from there and get going again."

"We're in the middle of a bad patch of form but that's going to happen during the season."

"We are not going to start panicking or changing what we're doing."

"We just need to keep ploughing away and cut out the little individual mistakes."
